EY Luxembourg
Hiring Team — Digital Factory
Luxembourg

Re: Digital Factory – Engineering Manager — Associate Director (Requisition ID 1689147)

Dear EY Luxembourg Hiring Team,

The current technology advisory model is undergoing a necessary restructuring, shifting away from high-level guidance to embrace a paradigm centered on execution-level capabilities like Digital Factories. The firms poised to lead this evolution are those that do more than just strategize change; they enable and accelerate Digital & AI transformation by industrializing end to end the delivery process. My hypothesis is that this shift toward high-velocity, scalable execution is the core vision behind the EY Luxembourg Digital Factory.

FSI Partners I'm used to work with face a technology specific challenge : shipping value predictably while staying audit-ready under FSI regulatory constraints. That tension – TTM vs. compliance – is the operating reality of every Digital Factory I have led. I want to bring a battle tested operating model to the EY Luxembourg Digital Factory, at a moment when the construct is right, the market is moving and ready, and your clients need execution depth.

My value proposition rests on two interlocking commitments. I will lead the engineering team(s), organizing a cross-functional topology of cloud and data engineers, backend developers, QA, DevSecOps, and Platform Engineers alongside Business, SMEs, Architects, PMO, Security, Product, and Design. Through that team, I will own three value streams: Delivery & Execution (DORA + SPACE), Technical Stewardship (modern SDLC + architecture), and Quality, Reliability & Operability (SRE + Platform Engineering). All four mandates, audit-ready under FSI compliance.

This is not theory. I have run, scaled, and pivoted this playbook across four regulated Canadian FSI Digital Factories: BDC (asset management and private equity), Desjardins (cooperative banking, insurance, wealth management), RBC Capital Markets (investment banking), and Payments Canada (national payments infrastructure). The attached Candidacy Pitch and CV walk through the structure and the numbers.

I welcome the conversation. Happy to defend any of the above in interview, walk through specifics with your team, or unpack the playbook against EY Luxembourg's current Digital Factory mandates. Challenge me.

Au plaisir d'en discuter de vive voix,

Kind regards,

Laurent Vincentelli
